3. Program description

The Preparatory Course for Admission to Higher Education is a preparatory course aimed at consolidating the pre-university knowledge, in order to prepare the student for access to higher education. With a duration of 1 academic year, it allows the acquisition of linguistic and disciplinary knowledge necessary for admission to undergraduate courses in different areas at any Portuguese University. This course, designed and built to cover a wide range of areas, allows the candidate to choose the specific course units to be attended, in order to take the entrance examinations for the course he/she wishes to apply to. It consists of 8 curricular units, 4 of them compulsory, whose goals to be achieved coincide with the Program and Curricular Goals defined by IAVE, from which two optional curricular are choosen by the student according to the program they intend to enrol in.
For those not enrolled in the course, it is permitted to enrol in course units, either as isolated curricular units (for external students) or as extracurricular curricular units (for students enrolled in other UÉ courses).
